 MEDICAL SPA

BEFORE

This business man had a medium red dot on his cheek, that he did not like and wanted removed.

AFTER

Two treatments and this lesion has disappeared with no scarring.

BEFORE

Port Wine Stain
This gentleman had a Port Wine Stain on his heel and ankle area. The client had been previously treated with liquid nitrogen, which had left scarring.

AFTER

After six LASER treatments, the erythema is reduced and the client is now comfortable wearing shorts and sandals.

Vascular Lesions

THE PROCEDURE

One or two FDA approved, medical grade LASERS are passed over the lesion one to four times which targets oxyhemoglobin in the vascular lesion.

THE RESULTS

Smaller lesions will initially turn darker before diminishing or disappearing. Larger lesions including Port Wine Stains will require more treatments and will lighten with regular treatments.

THE PAIN

A topical numbing medicine may be applied to ease the pain and an anti-histamine is offered to reduce swelling. This generally controls the discomfort and renders the procedure pain-free. Oral pain relievers and anti-anxiety medications are available if needed.

THE COST

Cost is determined by size and ranges from $100-$600 per treatment.

NOTE: Dr. Simmons treats Port Wine Stains Pro Bono.
